RULES OF COURT: Follow the Golden Rule. Use Your Own Words. Be Honest. Tell The Real, Actual, Unvarnished Truth

The only thing you have is your words, so use them wisely and efficiently. Proper Netiquette is about making what you say intelligible, honest and respectful. Avoid being accidentally mistaken for a mean-spirited, disrespected obnoxious lout and liar, unless you want to be mistaken for a disrespectful, obnoxious, mean-spirited lout and liar. If so, don't do it here. You are expected to obey the Rules and Guidelines of Court. Each Judge will have the Rules of Court posted.

ONLINE COURTS: There are many Courts available, some are specific, like Sports or Family Court; some are special events (with celebrity judges). Most are Courts of General Jurisdiction; the majority of issues can be heard. Everyone will get their time in Court. The goal of CyberJustice© is to allow the Plaintiff to get something off his/her/their chest. Don't spoil it. Your turn will come. Remember you speak for yourself and yourself alone. Present your feelings and actions, no one else's. Tell the COURT exactly what happened. Who wronged you? What did they do? Why are you mad?

You and the other jurors define the case being told, so work together to make the trial a positive (and fun) experience. The interactions are the purpose of the experience, not winning or losing. Wait your turn. Part of your education can come from wandering in and out of Courtrooms to watch how others interact. You can participate as much or as little as you like, including as a Spectator. In fact, it's highly recommended for new

THE COURT FAQ'S (Frequently Asked Questions)

WHAT DO I DO AND SAY IN COURT? You don't need a lawyer. If YOU want to talk about it, YOU are your own Prosecutor in The COURTS of KARMIC JUSTICE. You may plead your case (any kind, small or large) against anyone or anything, for any reason (factual reality, silly or serious). Tell your story in your own words, be clear and convincing. You may have witnesses, but it's not necessary.

HOW LONG DO I HAVE TO PRESENT MY CASE? There's no time limit, subject to the Judge's discretion. Each case is different. Some can be decided quickly. Others are complex and may take longer. Everyone will have an opportunity to be heard.

WHO'S WHO IN COURT? The person who brings the case to Court is the PLAINTIFF. The DEFENDANT is the person(s) who allegedly "wronged" the Plaintiff. WITNESSES can be called to support either side. The JUDGE maintains the Court's environment, and organizes the ONLINE JURY. Anyone can volunteer and be designated as a member of THE JURY. The minimum for a Jury is three people. The maximum is the size of the Courtroom.

CAN MY CASE BE HEARD WITHOUT THE DEFENDANT? Yes. The Defendant may or may not appear in Court, and the Plaintiff(s) might not want them to appear. You can request their presence by sending an Email SUMMONS, however, if there isn't a Defendant, the Judge may ask a Spectator to become a DEVIL'S ADVOCATE (DA) to represent the Defendant's side in the trial.

WHO WILL ASK ME QUESTIONS? The Judge, the Jury and Spectators in Court can ask questions. You can always refuse to answer a Question by saying, "I Take the 5th" or "Objection" or "Irrelevant". The Judge will ensure that you will not be embarrassed in Court. You are there to tell your own story in your own way. Hecklers are warned once and removed the second time. Remember you can "whisper". Use the Instant Message function to have a private conversation (with a Witness, Attorney, or anyone else).

Check the COURT DOCKET for the schedule for all the Courts, including changes to Courtroom hours and information about the sitting JUDGES and SUBJECT MATTER COURTS.
